UNITED STATES	•	aintiff,	A
FELIX SATER,	-against-			98 CR 1101 (ILG) FILED UNDER SEAL
	D	efendant.	v

DECLARATION OF KELLY MOORE

KELLY MOORE declares as follows:

- I am member of the Bar of this Court and am a member of the law firm of Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP, 101 Park Avenue, New York, New York, 10178, counsel for Felix Sater.
- 2. I make this declaration in support of Mr. Sater's application to this Court to (i) order the immediate return of certain confidential materials, much of which were previously sealed by this Court in connection with criminal proceedings before this Court; and (ii) conduct an inquiry into how certain persons acquired the materials and to whom the materials were distributed in order to ensure that all such materials are returned or destroyed.

Background

3. Mr. Sater was the subject of criminal proceedings before this Court, which concluded on October 23, 2009, index number 98 CR 1101 (ILG) (the "Criminal Proceedings").

- 4. This Court sealed the docket and filings in the Criminal Proceedings.
- 5. In connection with the Criminal Proceedings, certain confidential materials were sealed including:
  - a Cooperation Agreement dated December 10, 1998;
  - A United States Department of Justice Financial Statement dated December 10, 1998; and
- a Pre-sentence Investigation Report dated June 18, 2004 (the "2004 PSR"); (together, the "Sealed Materials").
- 6. In addition, Mr. Sater and the United States Attorney's Office entered into a confidential Proffer Agreement dated October 2, 1998 (together with the Sealed Materials, the "Sealed and Confidential Materials").
- 7. The confidential nature of the Sealed and Confidential Materials is plain. For example, the 2004 PSR states: "It is the policy of the federal judiciary and the Department of Justice that further redisclosure of the pre-sentence report is prohibited without the consent of the sentencing judge."
- 8. Mr. Sater was formerly affiliated with a real estate development firm known as Bayrock Group LLC ("Bayrock" and together with its subsidiaries, the "Bayrock entities").
- 9. Mr. Sater has informed us that, while he was associated with Bayrock, he kept the Sealed and Confidential Materials in a personal file in his Bayrock office.

The Delaware Court Dismissed an Action Filed by Mr. Kriss and His Attorney, Fred Oberlander

- 10. Jody Kriss is a former employee of Bayrock.
- 11. During the course of his employment, Mr. Kriss maintained an office adjacent to Mr. Sater's. As noted above, Mr. Sater kept the Sealed and Confidential Materials in a personal file in his Bayrock office.
- 12. Mr. Kriss was employed by Bayrock from 2003 to 2007 as Director of Finance. In 2007, he took a leave of absence. He returned from leave for a brief period in 2008 and then was terminated by the Company.

- 13. In or around 2009, Mr. Kriss commenced an action in the Delaware Chancery Court against, inter alia, Mr. Sater, certain Bayrock entities and certain employees of Bayrock entities (the "Delaware Action").
- 14. In the Delaware Action, Mr. Kriss was represented by several attorneys including Mr. Fred Oberlander.
- 15. In the Delaware Action, Mr. Kriss alleged, inter alia, that the Bayrock entities constituted a racketeer influence and corrupt organization (RICO), that tax laws had been violated, and that Mr. Kriss who was the Director of Finance at the time of the alleged violations had been denied certain economic benefits to which he was entitled based on his association with Bayrock.
- 16. Chancellor Strine dismissed the Delaware Action, finding, inter alia, that Mr. Kriss's disputes with Bayrock and the other defendants are the subject of an arbitration agreement.
- 17. By order dated February 19, 2010, the Delaware court directed Mr. Kriss to file an arbitration and, in the event the arbitrator determined that the claims were not arbitral, to file an action in court in New York. A copy of the order and the hearing transcript are attached as Exhibit 1.

Attorney Oberlander's Other Client Admits Taking Emails and Documents From Bayrock

- 18. In addition to the Delaware Action, another former employee of Bayrock, Joshua Bernstein, commenced an arbitration against Bayrock.
- 19. In that action, Mr. Bernstein testified that, during the course of his employment, he downloaded files from the computers and servers of Bayrock and installed monitoring software which allowed him access to other Bayrock personnel's computers. (See Ex. 2, Bernstein Deposition at 194-233).
- 20. Mr. Bernstein further testified that when he left Bayrock, he took "thousands" of emails and hundreds of documents (Id.)
  - 21. Mr. Oberlander represents Mr. Bernstein.

Messrs. Kriss and Oberlander File a New Action in the SDNY, Using the Sealed and Confidential Materials

- 22. On Wednesday, May 12, 2010, Mr. Oberlander emailed to Ronald Kriss—a partner at the law firm Akerman Senterfitt and father of Jody Kriss—a draft complaint (the "SDNY Complaint") on behalf of Jody Kriss and another former Bayrock employee against Mr. Sater, Bayrock entities and numerous others.
  - 23. The SDNY Complaint is similar in nature to the Delaware Action.
- 24. The SDNY Complaint references and attaches as exhibits thereto the Sealed and Confidential Materials.

- 25. In addition, the SDNY Complaint quotes numerous privileged communications between Bayrock and its counsel.
  - 26. Mr. Oberlander's email to Ron Kriss stated as followed:

From: fred55@aol.com [mailto:fred55@aol.com]
Sent: Wednesday, May 12, 2010 12:33 PM
To: Kriss, Ronald (Sh-Mia); Kriss, Ronald (Sh-Mia)

Subject: Fwd: complaint, sdny, salomon, weinrich, & salomon & co.

Ron --

I recommend you forward this to Julius with the comment from me that there are three alternatives here:

- (a) I file publicly today.
- (b) I file under seal today.
- (c) He arrange a tolling agreement with EVERY defendant but nixon peabody.

I don't care how many people he has to get on the phone and how fast he has to work. He had years to give back the money and now it's over. He can get Brian Halberg to help him.

I believe it's possible to get this in under seal if Bayrock joins in a joint motion in part 1 to seal the complaint pending a redaction agreement with the assigned judge but there are never any guarantees.

Thanks,

FMO

A copy of this email is attached as Exhibit 3.

- 27. The "Julius" referenced in the above email is Julius Schwarz, an officer of Bayrock.
- 28. The above email, together with the draft SDNY Complaint and the exhibits thereto, were distributed by Ronald Kriss to Mr. Schwarz in the SDNY action. A copy was forwarded to Mr. Sater. We do not know how many times Mr. Oberlander's email was forwarded with the attachments.

- 29. On Thursday, May 13, 2010, Mr. Oberlander filed the SDNY

  Complaint in the Southern District of New York, and the matter was assigned to the Hon.

  Naomi Reice Buchwald.
- 30. The SDNY Complaint was made available to the public for download through a paid online news service, "Courthouse News." We do not know how many people downloaded the SDNY Complaint from Courthouse News.
- 31. Later that day, upon learning of the filing, my partner, Brian Herman, and I called Mr. Oberlander to demand that the Sealed and Confidential Materials be withdrawn and returned.
- 32. Mr. Oberlander informed us that he had retained his own counsel, an attorney named David Lewis, to address his disclosure of the Sealed and Confidential Materials.
- 33. Mr. Lewis refused to disclose how his client, Mr. Oberlander, had obtained the Sealed and Confidential Materials and refused to return the Sealed and Confidential Materials.
- 34. Mr. Lewis also stated that Mr. Oberlander had made an unsuccessful application to have the Materials filed under seal in the Southern District, and that he was amenable to a joint application to Judge Buchwald.
- 35. Mr. Lewis, Mr. Herman and I subsequently spoke with Judge Buchwald on May 13, and Judge Buchwald immediately issued an order preventing further dissemination of the SDNY Complaint, the exhibits thereto and the information therein (the "First Order"). (Exhibit 4). Judge Buchwald indicated during the telephone conference that any application for return of the Sealed and Confidential Materials or inquiry into the disclosure should be directed to this Court.

- 36. On information and belief, a copy of the First Order was sent by Mr. Oberlander to each person to whom he had previously sent the SDNY Complaint. However, we do not know whether the SDNY Complaint and the exhibits were distributed further.
- 37. On May 14, 2010, at the request of Morgan Lewis, Courthouse News removed the SDNY Complaint from its website and sent a copy of the First Order to each person who had downloaded the SDNY Complaint.
- 38. On May 14, 2010, Judge Buchwald issued a second order (the "Second Order") sealing the SDNY Complaint in its entirety pending further order of the Court. (Exhibit 5). Judge Buchwald further ordered that a redacted version of the original complaint, redacting any sealed documents or references to sealed documents, be filed by May 19, 2010.
- 39. On May 17, 2010, Courthouse News ran a news story disclosing information from the SDNY Complaint. At the request of Morgan Lewis, the story was taken down, but we do not know how many people read the story while it was still posted.

Mr. Sater Seeks Relief

- 40. To summarize:
- Mr. Oberlander and one or more of his clients are in possession of the Sealed and Confidential Materials;

- Mr. Oberlander refuses to disclose how he obtained the Sealed and Confidential Materials and refuses to return them;
- Mr. Oberlander, aware of the confidential nature of the documents, has distributed the Sealed and Confidential Materials and the SDNY Complaint referencing the Sealed and Confidential Materials, and the recipients may have further distributed that information;
- As a direct result of Mr. Oberlander's actions, the SDNY Complaint referencing the Sealed and Confidential Materials was posted for download to the public and was used as the basis for a news article.
- 41. Based on the foregoing, we respectfully request that this Court issue an order requiring Mr. Oberlander, his clients and anyone else who has received the Sealed and Confidential Materials or documents referencing the Sealed and Confidential Materials to immediately return all copies to Mr. Sater. Further, in order to fully effectuate relief, we ask that the Court conduct a hearing to determine how this disclosure occurred and the extent to which the Sealed and Confidential Materials were disseminated.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1746, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge. Executed on May 18, 2010.

C.A. No. 4154-VCS

Dear Counsel:

To my chagrin, I realized that the final order in this case was never entered. No one brought to my attention this omission. The order had been finalized but not entered some months ago. Here it is. I regret the delay. In future, if a delay of this ever occurs and it actually worries you, please contact my chambers. I do not like to create delay and this was an error of omission in filing, as the order had been finalized by me in late September.

Very truly yours,

FINAL ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, this 19th day of February, 2010 for the reasons set forth in the September 16, 2009 bench ruling of the Court, that:

- 1. As to all Defendants, all claims pled in the Complaint are dismissed without prejudice for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, pursuant to Court of Chancery Rule 12(b)(1).
- 2. As to all Non-Resident Defendants named in the Complaint as defined in the Bayrock Defendants' Opening Brief, all claims pled in the Complaint are dismissed without prejudice for lack of personal jurisdiction, pursuant to Court of Chancery Rule 12(b)(2).
- 3. As to the Resident Defendants named in the Complaint as defined in the Bayrock Defendants' Opening Brief, all claims pled in the Complaint are dismissed without prejudice for failure to join indispensible parties, pursuant to Rule 12(b)(7).

Plaintiff's Complaint is dismissed without prejudice, as opposed to with prejudice, solely so that the doctrine of res judicata does not preclude Plaintiff the opportunity to bring his claims before an arbitrator or, if certain claims are held not to be arbitrable, in a forum, such as the New York state courts, which can appropriately exercise jurisdiction over all Defendants and which is convenient. Of course, the reasons for dismissing this Complaint will retain their force into the future, and therefore an attempt by Plaintiff to bring these claims again in this Court will result in dismissal for the same reasons stated in the Court's bench ruling and which are summarized in this order.

                    MS. McCORMICK:
                    We're here today arguing defendants' 15 motion to dismiss. Defendants were all engaged in 16 real estate development through subsidiaries managed 17 by defendant Bayrock Group LLC, a New York-based 18 limited liability company. Mr. Arif, a defendant in 19
    this action, a Turkish citizen and a New York 20 resident, is the managing member of Bayrock Group.
21
    Many of the Bayrock Group subsidiaries are listed as 22 defendants to this action, and nine of those 18 23 subsidiaries are not Delaware entities.

Through his complaint Mr. Kriss seeks to enforce a November 10th employment agreement, which we'll refer to today as the November 10th contract, in which he was promised certain membership interests in certain subsidiaries of the Bayrock Group. This contract defines those entities as the company entities. The contract, however, does not catalogue these company entities. Various defendants have been named in this suit by virtue of the plaintiff's claim that they are, in fact, company entities under the agreement. We dispute this.

Mr. Kriss' claim ultimately boils down to whether Mr. Kriss is entitled to any moneys from any of these real estate entities and, if so, how much, if any at all. This question cannot be resolved without turning to the November 10th contract which governs when Mr. Kriss' membership interests, if any, would vest and to what, if any, moneys in the form of advancements or distributions Mr. Kriss would ultimately be entitled.

This contract, which was negotiated in New York and contains a New York choice-of-law provision, contains a binding arbitration clause.

This makes sense, given that the uncatalogued entities it was likely to affect were incorporated in a multitude of different states. Because the key question in this case is whether Mr. Kriss will be entitled to any moneys from any of the defendant entities, because this question cannot be resolved without turning to the substantive terms of the November 10th contract and because the November 10th contract contains a binding arbitration clause, this Court lacks jurisdiction over this dispute, and the case should be dismissed.

But even absent the arbitration clause, this dispute could not be entirely resolved in Delaware, because this Court lacks jurisdiction over 20 of the 29 defendants and because many of those defendants, including, at the very least, Mr. Arif and the Bayrock Group, both of whom are signatories to the November 10th contract are indispensable to this action. For these reasons, the case should be dismissed.

Defendants specifically have made three arguments in support of dismissal. First, the November 10th contract giving rise to plaintiff's claims contains a binding arbitration clause which should be enforced and which deprives this Court of subject matter jurisdiction over this action. 1 the clear and unambiguous language of this clause 2 delegates the question of substantive arbitrability to 3 an arbitrator, we submit that this Court need not 4 consider whether plaintiff's claims are within the 5 scope of the arbitration clause at issue in order to 6 7 dismiss the action. 8 THE COURT: So we leave it to the 9 arbitrator. 10 MS. McCORMICK: Correct. In any event, the claims are, in fact, within the scope of 11 the arbitration clause. And were this Court to 12 13© undertake the analysis, it would result in our favor. 14 THE COURT: What were your discussions 15 with the other side about this amended complaint? did they not bring it forward, is your understanding? 16 17 MS. McCORMICK: I have no understanding as to why they haven't filed an amended 18 complaint, Your Honor. It's, frankly, confusing to 19 2.0 us. 21 Second, this Court -- second, this 22 Court lacks personal jurisdiction over 20 of the 29 defendants in this action. Plaintiff bears the burden 23 of establishing a prima facie case for the exercise of 24

Group under Section 18-109 of the LLC long-arm statute -- or LLC implied consent statute. We don't think the act in itself is enough to establish jurisdiction over the Bayrock Group or Mr. Arif. And we don't think the allegations are specific enough to support that claim.

THE COURT: Okay. Do you have anything else to add at this time?

MS. McCORMICK: I can continue, Your Honor. Our third argument is based on the fact that this Court lacks personal jurisdiction over indispensable parties to this action, specifically at the very least Mr. Arif and the Bayrock Group, but also the company entities who plaintiffs contend are signatories to the contract. We don't agree with this assertion, but -- especially with respect to the specific defendant entities; but because it's plaintiff's contention and this motion is based on the allegations in plaintiff's complaint, we don't think that plaintiff can move forward without these indispensable parties.

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. McCORMICK: Should I proceed on the factual background, Your Honor?

MR. OBERLANDER: All right.

THE COURT: So I don't want to hear a history of the world. This is a motion to dismiss.

For example, why was the motion -- why is the amended complaint not on file?

The amended complaint MR. OBERLANDER: is not on file because our prior -- my prior local counsel in Delaware specifically advised me when I said to him during its preparation "I think we need to file a books and records before we do an amended complaint because it will be full of derivative complaints." And I understand from reading Your Honor's transcript in a Bank of America hearing this would be a very advisable thing to do. And counsel, prior counsel wrote back in an e-mail and said it would just be very foolish. Just rely on discovery and go ahead and plead. He subsequently filed a request to leave the case a week later for irreconcilable differences, of which that was one; and within 30 days I replaced him with these gentlemen. And they've been working on the case for 75 days.

We have produced a great deal of documents that have been filed. As to the specific question of why the moment they came in we couldn't file an amended complaint, it was their suggestion. And the draft form of the amended complaint is quite complex and very serious and implicates very many serious charges against also new defendants who are not before the Court and shouldn't be mentioned here, that they said "No. You know what. We will argue the motion to dismiss but make clear that we do want you to file an amended complaint; No. 2, that the claims in the amended" -- wait, wait --

THÆ COURT: No.

MR. OBERLANDER: He wanted a books and records demand. So we did a books and records instead of --

all. You did exactly what the rule -- you stood on what you did and you will live on what you did. Books and records -- what people are admonished to do is to seek books and records before they file litigation. You can't file an initial complaint, then use books and records to get discovery.

So you've got a complaint before me.

You chose to stand on it. Stand on it. If you've got issues with yourself and your legal judgment and those of your Delaware counsel or prior Delaware counsel, that's all in your sacred sweat lodge on your side of the equation. I don't want to hear about it, okay?

You had an opportunity in response to this to file an amended complaint. You did not. So let's focus on what's in your complaint.

MR. OBERLANDER: All right. But just for the record, I wasn't intending to use books and records as discovery. Books -- I just wanted to be clear. Books and records -- since it's filed and been in front of you already, just for books and records runs to the new charges and a new complaint that -- you're in litigation, if you want information for an amendment, you need to either get it through discovery or you need to plead and plead the gateway. That is the way it works. It's a sequential thing. What people who are stockholders are encouraged to do is use their books and records right before they file a litigation. Once you file a litigation, you can't go around under 220 or an LLC statute equivalent and seek stuff to buttress your complaint. And Rule 15 (aaa) is clear. It's emphatically clear.

MR. OBERLANDER: It was my understanding that Rule 15 (aaa) says that once they file a responsive pleading, you no longer have the right to amend. You have to petition for leave to that --

                                      What 15 (aaa) clearly says is if you want to defeat a motion to dismiss,
    you're supposed to bring forward your amendment.
                    MR. OBERLANDER:

2.4

and I can state you the paragraph numbers to support 1 2 the following: Here's what -- here's how that complaint is structured. 3 THE COURT: Paragraph 71: "Secretly 5 (and therefore unknown to Kriss), each and every one of the sellers never intended to honor the rights 6 7 conveyed to Kriss by those securities ...." MR. OBERLANDER: Absolutely. But what 9 we're -- but there's a huge distinction here, a very 10 big distinction that -- that counsel for defendants 11 has glossed over, which is that there are -- to make it simple, there are two separate contracts at issue 12 13 There are actually 19 of them, but let's just 14 take two, one from the group of 18 and that agreement. 15 What we have here is the equivalent of 16 a TowerHill situation whereby --17 THE COURT: Will you stick to this case and stick to your complaint? 18 19 MR. OBERLANDER: The complaint says 20 that we signed the contract -- my client signed the 21 contract with them in which they said "We are now giving you membership interests in 18 limited" --22 23 well, "in all the limited liability companies known as 24 the company entities. We're giving you right now membership interest in them."

The complaint then says we're suing those companies issuing those interests because some of those companies absolutely did issue the interest but intended, after issuing them, never to honor the obligations conveyed by those interests. And the obligations conveyed by those interests are running through the limited liability company agreements of those companies.

a subscription agreement, except he provided services instead of money; but in return for that he was given stock in some number of company entities. Out of that number a subset -- it was completely effective. He got the stock, but we claim that the companies giving him the stock intended never to honor the dividend rights. Now, since it's an LLC, we'll say they gave him membership interests, intending never to honor any of the rights and obligations, including distributions, but it would be the same concept.

So what that complaint doesn't say, when Bayrock, the parent company, entered into this contract, it had a secret conspiracy with its managers and with its 18 controlled subsidiary-related companies. And pursuant to that conspiracy, it would cause all 18 of them to issue stock to him, but the 18 of them would then -- excuse me; membership interest, but the 18 would then, although he would now be bound by their limited liability company agreements, the 18 of them would never honor them.

Now, at the time we assumed, because of evidence that we would produce at trial, we assumed that some of the 18, they legally ineffectively couldn't actually make the transfer of interest because they didn't have the power and some they did. That complaint has been misrepresented.

Counsel in their opening brief in support of the motion to dismiss says that we have alleged in paragraph 39 that the document -- that the November 10th subscription agreement, employment agreement, call it what you will, they say that in paragraph 39 we claim it was legally ineffective as to convey membership interests in any of the other companies. That is absolutely not the case.

What happened is, I was advised we cannot do fictitious pleading in Delaware. So paragraph 39 of that complaint says that there is a group of companies, a subset of company entities -- and we will call that subset Class A. As to those, they had no power to convey the membership interests and, therefore, perpetrated a fraud, and those companies participated in the fraud along with Bayrock.

As to all the other companies not in Class A, they had the right, did give him -- and if you look at paragraphs 108 and 110, I believe, you will see that we affirmatively allege as to Bayrock Whitestone and as to Bayrock Spring Street that he was instantly made a member of them. And that's why there are derivative pleadings based on them.

basically saying the November 10th contract was intended not to be honored, the answer is absolutely not. Not only that, we are simply -- everything we are doing in this Court -- that we intend to do in this Court and that we want to do in this Court relates to claims of breaches of the limited liability company agreements and not of that November 10th contract. That's why I cite to Parfi, to TowerHill, to all of the cases involving dueling contracts.

This case is about -- and secondly -- if you will forgive me, let me backtrack. Secondly, counsel for defendant has said that we are making a claim for distributions we didn't get. I'd appreciate counsel showing me where in that complaint it is, because under no circumstances does that complaint say anything about distributions that he should have gotten and didn't get. We didn't make that complaint in that -- there's no claim for such a thing in there. THE COURT: Well, you say -- what do you mean by "cheated out of millions of dollars"? MR. The fact that you have an extraordinarily vague complaint and you're seeking to take advantage of it? You have a prayer for relief including without limited -- limitation money damages. MR. also asked -- pled in the alternative --

THE COURT: That isn't what you just said. You said it was unfair for your adversary to indicate that one of your beefs was withheld distributions, even though in the complaint you specifically say -- you refer to millions of dollars that your client supposedly didn't get. Then you ask for money damages.

MR. OBERLANDER: But it's pled with absolute -- the pleadings, the pleadings -- and she didn't object to failure to -- I don't see any motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action.

THE COURT: It's not the point. You just said that your complaint was mischaracterized by the -- indicating that somehow it encompassed a claim for lack of receiving distributions or something like that.

MR. OBERLANDER: A claim for distributions due and not paid pursuant to a limited liability company agreement would be a direct cause of action for breach of the limited liability company agreement. And I don't have such a claim in there.

What I claimed in there --

THE COURT: I'm sure that's helpful

    a matter of notice pleading that one could assume that
    that's the beef; but, in fact, no -- no facts are that the complaint would allow would be what -- for example, under one theory, what is it which, had he given because the Class A companies had no right to give it to him, what would he have received. So he was cheated out of millions of dollars from the Class A companies because they said "Here. Here's your stock in Class A companies." They knew darn well that they had no right to give it to him, that the conveyance is ineffective; but had it been effective, he would have had millions of dividends flowing through the stock.

In the LLC context, "Here are your membership interests in six Class A companies." Two years later they're ready to pay off; but the answer is nope, not to him, because they were ineffectually transferred.

So I can say that he was cheated out of millions of dollars, but it doesn't mean that out of distributions. It means money -- there are multiple theories by which he lost money that can be compensable, none of which run to distributions.

But the bigger --

THE COURT: Well, that's -- that's good. I'm glad that you've clarified that for everybody so that people could know what you were thinking when you said this.

MR. OBERLANDER: Well, I made at least eight separate attempts to talk to opposing counsel during the last several months. And it might have come up had they been willing to talk; but we got basically "Go away. We don't want to talk to you" comments from them at all times.

When you asked her "Did you ever speak to him" -- I believe you asked counsel whether or not they ever spoke with us about the amended complaint.

No, because they wouldn't simply speak with us. Don't answer phone calls. My colleague there will explain more, because he made more of the phone calls than I did. In fact, I only called once yesterday, and I think everything else was e-mail. I don't want to be misquoted.

But if Your Honor would please look at paragraph 39 of my complaint, paragraph 39 makes it very clear that we are saying "There is a class of companies in which you said" -- "you're giving him stock and you legally couldn't do it, and you knew that."

Now, it doesn't say it was ineffective as to all the companies. There are companies for which the transfers were effective. Those are the ones not in Class A; but specifically alleged in there in 108 and 110 are that two companies, Whitestone and -- Whitestone and Spring Street, that it was effective, and he became a member on November 10th.

Now, Mr. Arif filed a sworn affidavit in support of the opening brief for the motion to dismiss. And in that affidavit he says that he did give -- or he caused these companies to give interests to Kriss, and he said some of the company entities were formed in Delaware; but other than that, nobody on this group ever had anything to do with Delaware.

so if he's in here stating under oath that "We formed some company entities in Delaware and, No. 2, that's all we ever did in Delaware," then it should be obvious logistically that every company they formed in Delaware is a company entity. Whitestone was formed in Delaware, and Spring Street was formed in Delaware. So as far as we're concerned, they've now admitted as fact that Spring Street and Whitestone are company entities.

Now, we actually alleged in the complaint that they're company entities. And in the answer that they filed two days after their motion to dismiss so that we couldn't file an amended complaint at the time, which is why it didn't get done with prior counsel, what happened is that they filed a motion to dismiss. And then we said "Now, gee, why did you do that? We're still going to file an amended complaint." And it may be that there was a lot of work done for nothing. And he wrote back, Mr. Willoughby, "Well, no, you can't do that because under 15 (aaa) we filed a responsive pleading." And my counsel at the time wrote back and said "That's news to us. Please enlighten us why a motion to dismiss is a responsive pleading." So two days later they filed a perfunctory -- you talk about perfunctory -- they filed a perfunctory answer. There's no reason they filed that answer other than to stop me from being able to file an amended complaint without leave. But --THE COURT: They filed an answer? MR. OBERLANDER: Yes. They filed an answer two days after the motion to dismiss. you look at the e-mail trails that are in our reply brief, you will see that it was specifically done just to stop me from filing an amended complaint as of right. They filed a motion to dismiss on May 13th, I think, and then on May 16th filed an answer.

But if I may, you know, and standing on this complaint, I would be perfectly willing to do the following: I will be -- first of all, in their -- in their reply brief -- I'm sorry.

In their reply brief they affirmatively allege that they did transfer the interests in all company entities. That's in there.

It specifically says in order to effectuate the profits' interest in the Bayrock enterprise or whatever you want to call them, in order to effectuate them, the limited liability company agreements of all of the company entities were modified and amended to incorporate the provisions of Section 4. That's a paraphrase of three consecutive sentences.

since they allege that all the company entities were properly modified as to their limited liability agreements, we stipulate to that. We withdraw the entire Class A section of the complaint; and, therefore, we stipulate to their allegation that all of the limited liability company agreements of all of the company entities were, indeed, amended. And every cause of action with which we wish to proceed is for breach of those limited liability company

29 agreements, absolutely none of which have arbitration 1 provisions in them. And in their own argument they 2 3 say -- in their own opening brief they say that 4 Section 4, which has -- of the employment agreement, which has to do with the rights of the membership 5 interests, that section and no other section was 6 7 incorporated into those LLC agreements. 8 stipulate to that and agree that the LLC agreements of 9 every single company entity were modified on 10 November 10th to incorporate exactly Section 4 and no 11 other section. 12 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you, sir. 13 Tell me about this answer. 14 MS. McCORMICK: We filed an answer in 15 May, Your Honor. 16 Why didn't you say that THE COURT: 17 when I asked you about this thing about the amended 18 complaint? 19 MS. McCORMICK: We understand -- first 20 of all, it's our understanding, Your Honor, that 21 filing an answer does not preclude a party from seeking leave to file an amended complaint. We don't 2.2 23 know why they haven't filed the motion for leave to file an amended complaint. And that was the nature of my response to Your Honor.

THE COURT: So you were just trying to do it so that they wouldn't necessarily be able to file a motion with leave as of right?

wanted to preserve our opportunity to oppose the motion for leave to file an amended complaint. We wanted the opportunity to review the complaint and, based on the same frivolity that they filed their initial complaint, argue to Your Honor, you know, on the basis that you can oppose the filing of an amended complaint.

THE COURT: Thank you.

understanding, Your Honor, that even if you assume everything that -- that counsel for plaintiff has stated with respect to what he intended when he drafted the complaint to be true, even if you assume all of those things, that you still can't escape the November 10th contract's arbitration clause, because the issue of standing is still contested and because that clause itself governs substantive rights with respect to any of the company entities it purportedly vests membership interests in.

31 1 And the reason for that is, in the contract itself, which Your Honor was provided a copy 2 of in the form of Exhibit A to our opening brief, the 3 contract states that plaintiff is entitled to certain 4 advancements immediately and separately and later he 5 would be vested with membership interests, and any 6 distributions in the interests in those entities that 7 he was entitled to would be counted against any 8 9 advancement he had received. 10 So the issue of what money plaintiff 11 would ultimately be owed in any of those entities cannot be considered without looking at the 12 13 November 10th contract. 14 And even if it wasn't pled that that is a breach of action, it's our understanding that 15 that would factor into any award this Court was to 16 give Mr. Kriss, if any at all. 17 18 It's for that reason that we say that 19 the arbitration clause cannot be avoided. 20 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. 21 MS. McCORMICK: Thank you, Your Honor. 22 THE COURT: No. 23 MR. OBERLANDER: No?

I have to say, this is an astonishing circumstance for many reasons. But I'm going to give you my ruling. Then I'll give you some advice.

It may well be at the bottom of this that some serious wrong has been done to Mr. Kriss. What I do know is that there are have no idea. multiple reasons why this -- the complaint before me needs to be dismissed. Start with the first reason that the other side advances, which is the arbitration A reading of the complaint brings everything clause. back to the November 10th agreement. The complaint itself alleges that the company entities are parties to that agreement. That agreement has a broad arbitration clause. Rather than grapple with the governing law, the plaintiffs cited Delaware law, which is inapplicable. Frankly, the Delaware law that they cited doesn't help them.

Delaware Supreme Court, it's been very clear that when parties incorporate the AAA rules, they reverse the presumption that arbitrability is for the -- for the Court and it is for the arbitrator. In the McLaughlin decision reported at 942 A. 2d 616 -- and I believe it's the Carder -- I think it's C-a-r-d-e-r. 1 2 it's the decision of Vice Chancellor Parsons just issued within the week -- it's made emphatically clear 3 4 that if there's any colorable dispute about arbitrability in the event of the incorporation of the 5 AAA rules, that dispute is decided by the arbitrator. 6 7 Our Supreme Court made very clear in Willie Gary that 8 it was adopting the federal majority view, and that is an efficiency-based view. 9 10 The point is not that arbitrability 11 goes only to the arbitrator when there's no dispute 12 about arbitrability. That's a silly rule. The idea 13 is, in the event that there's a dispute about arbitrability, who makes the call. Willie Gary says 14 15 when you incorporate the AAA rules, it's the 16 arbitrator, except in some unusual circumstances. 17 New York is even more powerful, and 18 that's what matters here. Willie Gary and Delaware, Parfi, TowerHill, memories of mine, are irrelevant, 19 20 irrelevant. The contract at issue here is a New York 21 law contract, specifically New York law without regard to choice of law. The issue of arbitrability is then 22 one of New York law. 23

The New York cases are clear.

They

adopt the federal majority standard. When you pick AAA, arbitrability is for the arbitrator. Here, you have a broad arbitration clause which in court -- keeping with the New York authority, which was cited in the defendants' briefs and cited accurately -- if you have a broad arbitration clause -- and this is a broad arbitration clause -- and you incorporate the AAA rules, there's clear and unmistakable evidence that arbitrability is for the arbitrator.

There is some quibbles about arbitrability made by the plaintiffs. One of them relates to a clause which does have some -- some color to the argument, which is this idea about who is -- who has to arbitrate. They have an argument about how it's read. There's another reasonable way to read it, however. And that's the point. Which is if -- there may be certain nonsignatories you don't have to arbitrate against, but there are doctrines in law, well-recognized in New York and federal law, in which signatories are bound to arbitrate against nonsignatories.

The key issue -- and it is the central issue -- I don't make that call. The arbitrator does.

And if you don't like what the arbitrator says, then you appeal under the FAA.

What we clearly have is a signatory to a broad arbitration provision who is seeking -frankly, there's no excuse for evading the clause as to the company entities or the parties that you concede are signatories, none. None pled.

Clearly also on the -- if you want to get into the merits of stuff, arbitrability, but it goes to the colorability -- what I'll say is the clear colorable claim that there's -- that all these claims are arbitrable. The complaint itself links everything to the agreement. Mr. Kriss was supposed to provide certain services under the agreement. In exchange he got certain rights, rights in these LLCs, which were denied to him.

Despite counsel's -- counsel may want to say that there were certain things given; for example, that he got his interests in certain of the LLCs. Well, his pleading, the pleading is emphatically clear that Mr. Kriss was denied his rights under these agreements on a continuing basis. And it is alleged that the defendants never intended to honor the contract rights, such that it is alleged that they breached the November 10th contract, and there's even an implied covenant claim under those contracts. It's also made plain that the contract rights are intertwined with the receipt rights. He was supposed to get money in certain phases and other sorts of things. It's a complicated arrangement.

There's also an evident reason why you use an arbitration clause with respect to a multiplicity of entities incorporated or domiciled, as the case may be, since they're not necessarily corporations, in different jurisdictions. So that everybody could come together, which is why Mr. Kriss alleges that the company entities are, in fact, parties to the agreement. People could read it otherwise, but his allegation is that they are parties to the agreement. And his contractual promise, if he had a dispute about it or relating to his agreement, that he would arbitrate that.

All of which is -- in terms of getting to the merits of substantive arbitrability, I'm not making a call on that, because it is chosen by the parties that the arbitrator does it.

Alternatively, there's another basis to dismiss it. This complaint does not plead any 37 1 viable basis for jurisdiction over the nonresident 2 defendants. To the extent that there are some 3 Delaware entities involved, they preexisted in the complaint, they preexisted the contract. All that 5 Mr. Kriss says is that among the company entities were 6 certain Delaware entities, and he was supposed to get 7 interest in those. Well, among the many of the entities were Florida entities. He was supposed to 8 9 get entities in -- he was supposed to get interest in 10 Those entities preexisted this contract. 11 weren't formed. And this complaint doesn't plead 12 anything about later events. I'll get to some of the, 13 you know, musings about what might be in an amended 14 complaint some day; but this complaint pleads none, 15 nothing. 16 Also, what it doesn't do is identify really anything except it says that Mrs. -- you know, Mrs. ... is it Sharif? Arif was in cahoots, the 18 19 accountant was in cahoots, the lawyer was in cahoots. 20 Doesn't tie anything to any act in Delaware. 21 The thing that was used was the 22 long-arm statute. I'm extremely well-versed in it. 23 I'm happy -- I contributed to the jurisprudence to this state on many times about 3104 and the agency theory and how it works in concert. You have to have an act in Delaware. None -- and it has to be a substantial act in furtherance of conspiracy. Nothing like that is pled.

And, in fact, I think constitutionally here, the exercise of jurisdiction is highly suspect.

Usually when someone tries to invoke the conspiracy theory of jurisdiction, it's because there's been an act, formation of a Delaware entity or something in a transaction where Delaware law is the focus of what's going on.

What's astonishing here is the invocation of this Court's forum -- the forum of this state in a case that's so redolent of the Gotham Sorry. This is New York, New York, New York. state. And you read in the complaint Mr. Kriss, is he a Delawarean? No. He resides in New York. his address under the contract is 75th Street. Bayrock Group, the key central entity, New York limited liability company with its principal place of business in New York. Mr. Arif, identified as a Turkish national residing in New York. Sater, a resident of New York. Schwarz, he's in New Jersey, I suspect the part of New Jersey closer to New York than to Delaware, because what? He's an attorney licensed in New York and represents Bayrock. Dogan & Associates, law firm, principal office, New York. Dogan, attorney licensed to practice in New York. Salomon, New York professional corporation. Salomon, CPA, New York. Bencivenga, CPA, New York. Mrs. Sater -- Sater, Arif's -- is the wife of Sater. I suppose she lives with her husband in New York. If you look at the company entities, their principal places of business, even the Florida and Delaware entities, the principal place, a business of all of them is -- where it's identified is New York. The contractual choice of law is New York. So this contract is all about New All of the rights that go forward are linked into the contract. And I don't know how it would give anybody a reasonable basis, if I were in New York entering into a New York law contract as to the fact that there was some interest given in preexisting Florida and Delaware entities, how I would know that I would be hauled in to court on this complaint. don't believe it's -- it's constitutionally fair notice, and there's no proper statutory basis for service.

Given that, these are clearly indispensable parties. One of the reasons why, again, people do dispute resolution clauses like arbitration clauses, when you have people in different places, is to bring them altogether. There are Florida law entities here. There are entity -- there are people who live exclusively in New York.

I also say the complaint is wholly devoid of specific evidence of involvement of these people. Basically just throwing professionals into the mix by saying there is one contract -- there is one paragraph that I guess gets a little bit more specific. There's some -- "November ... 2005 ... communications between Issuers and their counsel and such other persons and ... Salomon ... in which they [were] warned of the absence of such authority"; but they "[weren't] known to Kriss at that time."

That's about it. Most of the stuff is very vague, and it certainly doesn't -- if you -- if you have a fraud standard under Rule 9 and you want to use the agency theory of jurisdiction, there's nothing linking these people to any formative activity.

So arbitration under New York law, established New York law in this context is for the arbitrator. Alternatively, there's no personal jurisdiction pled for the nonresident defendants, either, as a matter of statutory law or constitutional due process. And in the absence -- and -- and there are also -- this Court also, therefore, would not be able to have indispensable parties.

Now, let's talk about going forward.

I am going to dismiss this without prejudice through the institution of a complaint in New York if the arbitrator determines that there are claims that aren't arbitrable. It is with prejudice as to any filing in this Court.

I make that judgment -- I -- I don't necessarily applaud what the defendants did with respect to filing an answer, but it did not preclude the plaintiffs from seeking to amend. And the plaintiffs, if they wish to amend, should have amended. There's a sprawling, complicated, difficult-to-follow recitation in an answering brief of some new theory. I don't believe it's actually that distinct from the old theory. I think the old theory was "We basically told this guy he would get interest in these things." The contract spelled out what those interests were and how it worked with his draw and other kinds of stuff. And they never really intended to honor it. And certainly when things went well, they didn't.

And then there's some example in this new thing of how -- you know, the point is that some of the entities may have actually given him a membership interest. I don't know. It's hard to tell whether anybody got any certificates or anything noticing an interest or anything from what's pled. I mean, it's not -- "pled" is the wrong word. Not "pled"; put in a brief.

Why you put in an amended complaint and why AAA is the way it is, so that you can take your shot. If you don't like the first shot you did when they compiled their motion to dismiss, they give you -- in their brief they give you what their concerns are. You have the chance to obviate, you know, those concerns and to address them by bringing forth a new pleading. You don't get the chance to say in your brief what a pleading might look like.

Honestly, counsel sitting there telling me that the other side was supposed to interpolate what he meant by his pursuit of monetary damages, what he meant by his accusation that obligations owed to Mr. Kriss allegedly under the November 10th agreement, that -- remember, under the November 10th agreement -- and this is why the arbitrability point is colorable -- those -- that contract said you get certain rights in entities and entities would do certain things to give Mr. Kriss rights. Well, how anyone's supposed to know, when the complaint refers to -- refers to millions of dollars that he was not given and seeks monetary damages that somehow in this first complaint it wasn't dealing with distributions he was denied; only some other category? Who's supposed to know that? Most plaintiffs would stand up and say "Of course it encompassed all the elements of denial." Now it's "Oh, no. We were waiting for later to bring that on."

This kind of guessing game is not going to be useful to Mr. Kriss going on or to any tribunal trying to make sense of this. And you have your shot to bring an amended complaint. You didn't use it. I could dismiss it with prejudice entirely in some ways, but I'm -- the condition is going to be, you can take your shot in New York if you're going to bring another case back in court, but not here.

And I will also say in terms of -- this forum non conveniens is not easy to establish in Delaware; but if there's -- this is the kind of case where I believe our Supreme Court would be highly sensitive to inclination of this Court to grant a motion to dismiss for lack of proper forum.

Why do I say that? Well, what -- why we usually give credence to plaintiffs is because our state has some real nexus to what's going on. Our law is really at stake, for example, in the business context. That is not what is going on here.

The root of the wrong pled is that Mr. Kriss was contractually promised interest in a -- in a real estate empire that operated through multiple entities, and then from the get-go the intention of the people who lured him in to give his services was to not honor that promise. The holding company, ultimate holding company is a New York company. The core contract is a New York law contract. Mr. Kriss is a New Yorker. The people he dealt with were New Yorkers. He dealt with them in New York. The fact that some of the subs were in Delaware really doesn't drive the analysis.

They are also in Florida. We have blue crabs. They do that stone crab thing. I don't really understand it. New Yorkers do oysters. And -- but the point is, Delaware doesn't have much to do with this.

And then I hear that in the unspecified amended complaint there's going to be a holy host of others joining us. Well, there's one state where it's very obvious the parties centered their activity, where all the defendants -- there's not one defendant in here, if it's not arbitrable, who can't be subject to service in New York, not one. From what's pled, all the Delaware entities and all the Florida entities had their principal place of business in New York. The accountants practice in New York. The lawyer practices in New York. The wife's in New York.

York. The fraud law is New York. The contract law, the tort law, it's all New York. Entity -- what we're going to do is say a subsidiary -- some subsidiary denied Mr. Kriss rights? That's not even the theory; right? The theory is that these were subs to shells of the holding company, right, and that the dude who controlled the holding company, Arif, made all the decisions. That's the theory.

The holding company is a New York company. The contract that gave Mr. Kriss rights in any of these entities is a, by its express terms, a New York contract.

So I want you all to work on scrivening the thing. You need to take your shot in arbitration. And if you -- if it doesn't go in New York -- arbitration, you can file in New York; but this case is going to be dismissed in total, because the reasoning for it applies, frankly, to the defendant who has not moved. And I'm sorry if there were misunderstandings with counsel. I don't know what that's about, I really don't. I don't understand how anybody reasonably could read the rules of this Court or the procedural context that this is in, even given the filing of an answer, and not know that if you wish to bring on an amended complaint, you do it.

But one of the things here is, there's absolutely no explanation for why the arbitration clause doesn't apply against Mr. Arif, why it doesn't apply against the company entities as to the core issue pled in this complaint, which is clearly a breach of contract action. Also, all the other things, clearly there's a colorable argument that they're related and swept in by the arbitration clause.

versus signatory issues, there's absolutely no explanation of why those are not in arbitration. And so I really don't get why, you know, we got to where we are. But I'm not, frankly, doing Mr. Kriss any favors. He's pled substantial claims on the merits. If this is real, there's some -- and I have confidence the New York courts or the arbitrator will be sensitive to them.

But there are choices in life you make about where, you know, things are filed. And you have to respect that. And that's what I'm saying. This action -- or in New York, if I were keeping this action, this action would be immediately stayed until the arbitration is completed, even if there was nonarbitrable claims. Why? It's pretty obvious, that the core issue here of whether there was a breach of the -- of the 2005 agreement, whether that was fraudulently induced, whether there was anything, is central and ought to be determined first and that there's a risk of inconsistent judgments. Most -- a lot of the individuals brought here are essentially aiding and abetting the primary things.

I won't even comment on -- I don't

believe -- nobody attacked this. I also don't believe that the Arizona or Delaware securities laws apply every time a share of stock or an interest in a Delaware or an Arizona entity is sold. It would be astonish -- I mean, we could, you know -- Eliot Spitzer could look like a piker in comparison to our Attorney General, then. I had actually thought -- you talk about sales of securities within the borders of states when you're talking about blue sky laws, you know, because essentially every time a Delaware -- you know, General Motors stock was sold anywhere, you could, you know -- maybe that's the case and our blue sky laws apply. I just hadn't heard that before. I would think New York, right --MR. OBERLANDER: We don't have any. Well ... you don't have THE COURT: any. You don't have any securities laws? I mean ... MR. OBERLANDER: Not for private

THE COURT: Okay. But it just seems really odd.

And so I probably said too much. But I want to -- I respect the fact that there are serious concerns here by -- that Mr. Kriss has. I think, honestly, take -- take these words to heart. think if you do, you can be getting on with the merits in arbitration of pursuing your claims or certainly have the fight about arbitrability and then see what comes out of that. But in any event, what ought to come out of it is that this case ought to proceed either -as to the signatories, it seems pretty clear the arbitrator is going to make you go at least forward with some of the claims in arbitration or you're going to have to renounce those claims in some binding way. And then with respect to the rest, it all happened in New York. And I don't see any reason why it makes any thing that will have to be nuanced is how you do the interaction of the arbitration, because it really -you ought to be going to arbitration. It could be just as simple, again, without prejudice to filing in You may have to go -- if they file in New York and they go around the arbitrator again, you may have to get another ruling or something like that. But I think what I would encourage is that you all talk to each other. Come up with an order and move on and -- because you're clearly going to move on and have the fight somewhere. And I'm assuming that that's what Mr. Kriss most wants is to get his remedy, if he's entitled to one. So I say please accept everything I said in that spirit, because it's really meant in a constructive spirit for all. I'd rather you concentrate your resources on the central battle rather than on where you're going to have it. Thank you all.

MR. STAMOULIS: Your Honor, just one question with regard to your ruling. Does it apply to the books and records action that we filed yesterday with regard to Mr. Kriss seeking access to books and records on Spring Street and Whitestone, the two

Delaware companies? I just -- I don't want to be 1 2 pursuing an action in Delaware --THE COURT: You filed a complaint 3 yesterday? 4 MR. STAMOULIS: Yes, Your Honor. 5 We -- we had served -- we -- we discussed going 6 forward with a books and records action. 7 Mr. Oberlander mentioned it during his presentation. 8 We served a demand on the Bayrock company for books 9 and records. They responded to the demand by saying 10 our purpose was improper and pretextual. 11 And -- and, Your Honor --12 What I would do if I were THE COURT: 13 you, is, I would withdraw that complaint. I'm not 14 going to sit from the seat of my pants when I never 15 heard about that before. 16 What I will tell you is, I think if 17 you look at the law, once you put it in, once you put 18 it in play, which is by a complaint, you can't use 19 books and records, then, as discovery. And by 20 discovery, what I mean is buttressing your claim. 21 chose to sue. If you think you have enough to sue 22 either in arbitration or whatever, then you should go 23 do it. And you have done it. And the fact that you 24 filed your complaint while this litigation is pending, 1 I mean, again, I'm not dismissing it from the seat of 2 my pants. 3 What I would suggest is, I would 4 withdraw it, if I were you. Rethink your strategy. 5 What -- you know, I don't -- I'm not being paid to be 6 your lawyer. But I would file the strongest darn 7 arbitration complaint I could. And I would seek the best arbitrator I could under the AAA and an 9 experienced person and I'd get to fighting for the 10 remedy. But that's what you have to decide. 11 Having -- I had no idea -- I'm sure this got assigned 12 to me as a related case; right? 13 14

MR. STAMOULIS: Yes, Your Honor.

And it's related in THE COURT: Yeah. the sense that you wanted books and records so you could have discovery, you could have information that you could use in this case.

records action for several proper purposes. I will not argue that investigation of mismanagement, which you will see in that complaint, the books and records complaint, mind you, that cites activities in 2007 and 2005. You could fairly argue, Your Honor, and say that that could certainly look like we were attempting to use it for discovery. So I'm not going to argue that that could look like that. Certainly that wasn't our intent, but it could certainly look like.

But we have other proper purposes There is a very significant proper purpose in stated. the books and records which has nothing to do -- it could be inconceivable to link it to that complaint, which is that since they themselves have said in every document they filed here that they gave him profits' interests in company entities that made him a tax partner, those company entities have transacted, to our knowledge, $87 million worth of sales, loans, financings, and distributions; and he has never received one K-1, nor will they provide any tax returns or any other information. Tax returns are a statutory item under 18-305. It's specifically written requesting them, with very exquisitely detailed explanation of why he needs them line by line as a matter of partnership tax law, why he needs to know why there are problems, inconsistent position reports that have to be filed. And all of that, obviously, relates to valuation.

So since they have already rejected the books and records demand the same day we filed the action claiming our action was pretextual, there isn't one single thing anywhere in that complaint or in anything we talked about to file later that relates to taxes. His tax returns are absolutely -- not his; partnership tax returns are clearly contemplated by statute as absolutely a right to him. And in US v Somerville or is it Somerville v US, in one of the interim --

Ron --

I recommend you forward this to Julius with the comment from me that there are three alternatives here:

- (a) I file publicly today.
- (b) I file under seal today.
- (c) He arrange a tolling agreement with EVERY defendant but nixon peabody.

I don't care how many people he has to get on the phone and how fast he has to work. He had years to give back the money and now it's over. He can get Brian Halberg to help him.

I believe it's possible to get this in under seal if Bayrock joins in a joint motion in part 1 to seal the complaint pending a redaction agreement with the assignedm judge. but there are never any guarantees.

Thanks,
